IOWA.

High Water in the Missouri-Horse Thief Ku-Klux, etc. COUNCIL BLUFFS, June 30.—The Missouri has been known for several years. The high water extends up to Fort Sully, Dakota Ter-ritory. Advices from there this morning say that the water is still rising steadily. The banks are washing and caving badly all along. Three miles below this place it is found necessary in order to save it to move one mile of track of the St. Joe railroad half mile eastward. A party numbering 100 uniformed men have been parading our streets on horseback all day. They are known as Kuklux of the Crescent, and are vigilants composed of farmers, organized for the purpose of ridding the country of horse thieves. They are de-termined to deal with all offenders.

Attempted Burglary-Marder at Mount

Morris, etc. CHICAGO, July 30.—An attempt was made to burglarize the United States Sub-Treasury department here at an early hour this morning. The thieves, three or four in number, fired two shos at the watchman, which penetrated his clothing and lodged in a door post beyond. He promptly returned the fire when the thieves fled.

MOUNT MORRIS, June 30 .- Nelson Yard and wife yesterday shot and instantly killed his relief.

Jackson Jones. Mrs. Yard fired a revolver and missed. They allege that Jones com-mitted a rape on Mrs. Yard some time since, which is doubted. ...ard and his wife confessed the deed and are now in jail.

WASHING TON.

Butler's Chances-The Cholera Scare Washington, June 30.—Secretary Richardson returned last night from Massachusetts, and was accompanied by Senator Bout-well. Persons who conversed with them say both of them favor the election of Ben. Butler as Governor of Massachusetts, and they are of the opinion that he will be nominated and elected. It is generally under-stood here that the influence of the Administration will be thrown in favor of Butler. The cholera scare is virtually over in this District. There was only slight foundation for it in fact, but the effect has been good in arousing the authorities to a more thorough realization of the necessity of enforcing their rules to preserve the cleanliness and health-fulness of the city, in causing citizens to be prudent in diet, and otherwise. Secretary Richardson has came here to an-nounce his gold selling and bond purchasing policy for July, which he telegraphed of-ficially last night. It reduces the amount of gold to be sold owing to heavy disbursements during the month of coin interest.

MOB MURDER. Deloss Heffren Hung by a Mob-He Makes a Desperate Resistance.

[By telegraph to the Sentinel.] NEW ALBANY, June 29.—The vigilants entered Salem at one o'clock this morning. They surrounded the jail, and overawing the guard and deputy sheriff, demanded the keys from him, but he refused to give them up. The mob then confined the deputy sheriff, and taking a sledge hammer, battered down the door, the wall of the cell next to Heffren's, and two massive iron doors. The locks and fastenings of the cell doors were all on the outside, and after the mob got into the jail and on the upper floor, where Hef-fren's cell was located, all of the bolts, bars ate character of Heffren, and no one of them would venture inside the door. Turpentine balls were thrown in, and by their light twenty-five shots were fired at Heffren. He was twice wounded, once in the shoulder, and one shot breaking his arm so that he could not use it. When he surrendered, first having been stunned, the vigilants took him out of the jail. Heftren said, "What are you going to do with me?" "Going to hang you," was the answer. "I will go with hang you," was the answer. "I will go with you," he replied. The yigilants then took him to the railroad bridge, about 200 yards from the jail, and producing a rope, placed it around his neck. When he begged for time to pray, they replied, he ought to have thought of that before, as there was no time for that now and st once. there was no time for that now, and at once hung him from the side of the bridge. They then left him banging and went back to the then left him danging and went back to the jail and released the Deputy Sheriff and guards, gathered up everything they had brought which could identify them, and scattered in every direction. No one knows by what road they came or where they went. All of them were masked, and none recognized. None were injured or interfered with None were injured or interfered with by any one. The captain was a very large man. Their plans were well laid and quickly executed, very few of the people of Salem knowing of the occurrence until they left.

The hring was all inside of the Jail, and only those living near heard it, and they were those living near heard it, and they were kept in their houses. The continuance of Heffren's trial by the Circuit Court Thursday, precipitated the lynching.

The whole number of vigitants, twentwork two or thirty, are supposed, with good reason, to be the same committee which hung the Reno boys at New Albany. There is great excitement in Washington county. Judge Dunham, ar uncle of Heffren, and John S. Davis, of this city, were Heffren's contisel. Heffren fought like a tiger until the rope was put around his neck. His the rope was put around his neck. His body was cut down at four o'clock this after noon by Heffren's brother, Horace. The deceased was married to the widow of a person whom he had killed two years ago. He was a powerful man, of desperate character, and the terror of the town. He kept a liquer saloon in Salem and drank heavily for come time. Circumstances had alreedy pointed to the coming tragedy. A few nights since a body of about thirty-five men rode and shorth about midnight, after a party of fifteen came from the south; both, after reconnoitering ine place, departed, going toward Canton The impression was on the minds of every man about Salem since the killing of De-Halsted that Heffren would be hung, and since the action of the Court in his case on Thursday that impression had been deepened. Almost every man declared the opinion that Heffren would not be alive this morn ing. Unusual commotion has prevailed throughout the county since the killing of DeHalsted. Where it was started is not known, but the saying was heard all over the county that Washington county had helped Jackson county to hang Jackson county murderers in New Albany, and now Jackson county would help Washington county to hang Washington county murder-

Union Stock Yards.

On Saturday the Indianapolis Union Stock Yard Company organized with a capital stock of $600,000, elected Thomas D. Kingan, John H. Farquhar, Henry C. Lord, James C. In return, Holland asks certain privileges to be granted Dutch traders at the Acheenese ports.

THE Journal talks of J. McBride Shepherd. It is not J. McBride, but J. Mc-Birney. He is the individual that Joe Davis says tried to teach him addition. division and silence.

that there is a sufficient number of city officials and law makers who dare not legislate against the leading palaces of sin?

Mr. Shepherd said when Mr. Davis charged him with having demanded a per centage on the city's purchases, that he would have the charge investigated. Nearly two months have passed and he has not opened his mouth about it. We don't suppose an investigation would amount to anything, and we don't suppose the Council has any right to order one, but it would have been the part of an honest man to demand one and not to rest tamely under such an imputation. Mr. Davis makes the charge unequivocally and says he can prove it, but Mr. Shepherd doesn't answer a word. His silence causes a suspicion that the charge is rue.

JESSE R. GRANT, the President's father died at Covington last night, aged nearly eighty. The old man's life was eventful only through being the father of his son. A Pennsylvanian by birth and a tanner by trade, he early settled in Ohio, where he amassed a fortune and raised a family. The last few years made his weakness of age familiar to the country. His death was quiet and peaceable, the result of old age. Like the father who saw his two sons victors upon the same day in the Olympic games, he could well say after beholding the triumphs of his son and his re-election to the highest office, "Now I am ready to die." Few fathers have been so fortunate in living to see the highest paternal desire so amply gratified.

THE Sentinel speaks of the representa tive of the Fourth Ward who lives in the Third, as "the depraved Gibson." This is too severe on "Wicked Bill." It is true that he lives in one ward while drawing pay as the representative of another, an act which some people would call dishon orable, but then he is not wholly wicked as the Sentinel would imply. He is a firm supporter of the law-when it applies t other people-and he has a standard of right to which he thinks everybody must conform. There are worse men than Wicked Bill even among the millers There was, for instance, that wicked old miller of Dee that cared for nobody, no. not he, and there are numerous others in existence, although perhaps not in this immediate vicinity.

The Park Question.

Something should be done with the park question to-night. The wity is offered one hundred acres of eligibly located land as a gift, and upon no conditions whatever. It has merely to accept the gift and keep the ground for park purposes. It is not asked to expend one dollar until such a time as the authorities may deem proper. It is certainly a very strange thing that any one should object to this liberal offer, let alone think of spurning it. The city is not in the habit ot receiving offers of valuable property without conditions, and the interests the people, we should imagine, would demand its immediate acceptance and the return of grateful thanks to the generous

There seem to be two influences ope rating in the minds of Councilmen to prevent the acceptance of this liberal offer. The first is the fear that somebody may be profited, and the second is that vicious and reprehensible feeling of antagonism between the north and the south ends which has been fostered in some quarters, and which if not checked will inflict great injury sooner or later. As to the first: It is quite likely that the donors will make a large profit by the increase in the value of their lands. What of it? Does that injure the city's portion Does that make it any the less valuable The land is certain to become more valuable anyhow. It is but a question of time with these owners when they get their enlarged value out of it. If the city does not take what is offered they will have that much more for which to receive the advance that is absolutely certain to come. In 1867 the city was offered and refused twenty-five acres of ground, because "the Fletchers wanted to make money out of it," and to-day that same piece of ground is worth a quarter of a million dollars. It would be a nice thing for the city to own now, and we have good reason to condemn the short' sighted policy that refused its acceptance. Now this city is offered four times as much and it is hampered by no conditions as it then was. Shall the same policy prevail or will our city rulers act the part of wise men and gladly accept that which law did even a considerable share of the costs nothing and is certain to be useful duty of protecting community, there is no

As to the second influence: We deplore exceedingly that condition of mind or worse, in cases of blood supported by which strives to stir up a vexatious and wicked rivalry between two sections of land, where crimes are punished with an a Carlist force under the personal command of our beautiful city. There should be no impartiality and certainty never known Don Alphonso, is officially confirmed. The Inter- antagonisms, no feeling. One is essential or approached here, a lynching mob to the well-being of the other, neither could get along without the other, an dby an earthquake. The law strikes high and both the city is formed. The interests of low alike there. Money is no security one sides are the interests of another, and against the penalty of crime. Sir Culling the Councilman who considers himself Eardley commits bigamy and goes to the bound only by the petty considerations of penitentiary. Mr. Palmer, a big speculahis own block or ward, in opposition to the permanent interests of the whole city is a blockhead who is unfitted for his Court to "run to" as we have. position. Local interests are well enough little immaterial and irrelevant oversight in their way, but they must not stand in would have been found in some ruling or the way of the progress or comfort of the baronet and the speculator and railroad whole city. The man who opposes this man would have got new trials and finally free gift of a park because it is on the got off altogether. He is false alike to his constituents and the die.

Will the Council have the nerve to- city. It is true the South end needs a night to pass that ill-fame ordinance in- park more than the North, and if the troduced by Judge Elliott, which has been city was buying it ought to be provided hanging fire for so long, or will that body for first. But this is not an ordinary cirgive still stronger coloring to the rumor cumstance; it is a very exceptional one. But by all means, give the South end a park. Take some steps to secure a site Ground will never be cheaper than it is now, and bonds can be issued as well now as ten years hence when the price will be five times as much. Look ahead, tleman of the Council, you are legislating for no village, but for a city that is is des tined to hold two hundred thousand people within ten years, and there is no place for a penny-wise, pound-foolish policy.

Following Close After.

And again a mob has executed vengeance because there could be no confidence of justice. Deloss Heffren, who murdered De Halstead, a week ago, in Salem, Washington county, in this State, was taken out of jail about two o'clock on Sunday morning, after a desperate contest in which he was wounded several times with pistol shots, and hung on the railroad bridge by a company of some twenty-five men who were disguised, act ed promptly and upon an evidently preconcerted plan, and dispersed as soon as the work was done. Law, as now administered, is little better than nothing where the offence is murder and the offender has money, but mob law is worse than nothing. Bad as criminal courts may be, an irresponsible court and unknown executioners, acting upon no system and as often indulging private resentments as what they consider enforcing public necessities, are a great deal worse. There is no justification of the Heffren hanging, therefore, nor can there be any justification of such acts so long as any law is left, and any law at all is better than none. But to this end tends directly every legal escape of a murderer from the penalty of an undoubted crime. It is a bloody reaction against a saturnalia of blood. We have no doubt whatever that the recens decision of the Supreme Court in the Clem case, interposing the most trivial of technicalities to give crime a new chance of escape, has had something to do in producing the state of popular feeling in which this terrible affair originated. There was no doubt about the killing, no pretence that the murderer was not Heffren, no fear of equivocal or insufficient evidence. The whole difficulty was a fear, made by the Supreme Court a well grounded fear, that the least deviation in the trial from some forgotten form, the disregard of some utterly irrelevant technicality, would make the evidence of a 'cloud of witnesses' idle, and give the homicide a new chance to profit by the death or absence of witnesses, by the opportunities of bail, by tampering with a second or third or fifth jury, and by changes of venue to suit circumstances. THERE WAS NO CONFIDENCE OF JUSTICE There is none, anywhere in this country, where blood-guiltiness is the offense, ex cept New England. And this lamentable condition of things is due wholly and solely to the lax administration of a criminal law made too lax by sentimental legislation. It is said that Heffren was "developing some unexpected line of defense," and that this discovery aggravated the feeling against him, and against the law under which he expected to hide. In a proper condition of criminal administration and popular feeling the fact that an "unexpected defense" had been discovered. would be a decisive argument against any interference with the course of the law. if there were no other. It would suggest at once that "the man may be innocent, may be justified," and resist any proceeding that might endanger him. But such preposterous defenses have been sanctioned by Courts, and made effective for the evasion of bloody responsibilities, that the suggestion of a "defense" now is a suggestion of some new trick, some contrived exculpation, some "trumped up" dodge, "insanity" never suspected till after the murder, "self-defence" never dreamed of by the murderer or those who saw the murder, "bungling surgery" that made a slight wound mortal, and such a mass of impudent defiance of common sense and common justice as puts one beyond all patient; hearing. No wonder the discovery of Heffren's "new defense" aggravated instead of alleviated the feeling against him. 1. was a new "assurance that he would escape, and a now provoca tion to prevent escape by a remedy worse by far than the disorder. That these lamentable outbreaks are the fault of courts and the law, the growth of that devotion to formalism which seems to have culminated in the Clem case, is just as certain as that we have Courts and that their ability or disposition to do justice is not TRUSTED in cases of bloodshed. If the community in this country but would trust it without question. It is because the law and its administrators do nothing, money, that lynch law exists. In Engwould be as startling a phenomenon as tor, commits murder and is sentenced to death. Neither would have been convicted in Indiana with such a Supreme instruction of the Court below, and the Faded and worn in places, Faded and worn and old, My tears on it leave their traces As I smooth it leave their traces.

As I smooth it out fold upon fold
For it beareth a magic power,
The fount of my tears to unlock,
When I think of the happy hour
I fashioned that little frock.

My darling sat beside me, With his beautiful eyes agle m, and the joy that was erst denied me Seemed into my heart to beam, As I thought of the wondrous mercy. Of the goodness and the love, That prompted "Our Father" to send me Such an angel down from above.

My needle flew faster and faster My thought took wing as it flew, To the courts of the blessed Master From whose gates my baby came through And I wonder if all God's angels Looked as pure and frail as he— If among the shining archangels There was any more fair to see.

But there came a pale, sad stranger Unto my house one day; My heart stood still, as if danger And darkness about me lay. I besought him that he would leave me, For his touch was chill and strange, And he laid his hand on my baby Who straightway seemed to change

His pale ittile cheeks grew whiter,
His bright blue eyes grew dim,
His clasp on my finger grew lighter,
The victory was to him—
To the pale and icy monarch,
Who rules with relentless sway,
Who start to my home in trinwah Who eame to my home in triumph And bore my tree sure away.

His pale little cheeks grew whiter

But a greater than he remaineth, Who hath broken the bonds of the tomb— Who hath robbed King Death of his terrors who hain robbed king Death of his terro and lighted the pathway of gloom; Who hath promised us sweet consolation, If we patiently bow beneath his rod, And I know he has taken my darling To bloom in the garden of God.

LONDON.

The Quiet of the Sabbath-A White Man Can't Shave-Style in Dressing-Pence and Pounds-Amusements.

Henry Watterson's Cor. Courier Journal. To-day, being Sunday, London is as silent -almost as deserted-as a place of burial. The window of the room in which I am writ ing overlooks an old church-yard. moss-grown slip out of antiquity which has not been enlivened by a funeral these six and fifty years. Well, the streets beyond are scarcely less still and solemn than this for the English are a melancholic, Sabbath keeping people. The Times does not appear on Sunday. On Sunday the mid-day omnibuses do not run, the railways are at rest and even the ale-houses are closed. You miss the ciatter of the every-day wheels. You miss also our own Sunday's jangle of church bells. It is 11 o'clock now, and I hear just a single, belated clapper, ringing a sleepy ding-dong, as if it had beer only half waked and reminded of something. At this moment Louisville is livelier than London. The English church-goer is of a Puritan turn, and wears his mien and his clothes af ter the same somber fashion; whilst the mer ry-making world, the nobility, the gentry, and the wicked Americans, take their Sur day elsewhere; at Greenwich eating white bait; at Hampton Court ogling the portraits of the wanton women of ancient festive times; at Richmond and at Brighton, drink ing and flirting, happy to be away from the Sabbatarian decencies and restrictions of the villagiest metropolis in the world.

Do you know that there is not a well-or dered and fairly equipped barber shop in all London? A clean shave here is simply butchery. You go into a closet, seat your self in a common chair, and are set upon by a clumsy varlet, who fancies that your neck is a young oak, and that his razor is a dull ax, the latter surmise being strictly true, when presently you are asked to get up and wash yourself. You do get up accordingly, holding your head on your shoulders, and afterward pay down your shilling with a dim thankfulness that your life has been spared You come away with a budding flower gar den peeping up over your shirt collar. don't recover in a week. I mentioned the circumstance, deferentially, to a hair-dresser who told me he had spent a year in America and he said: "Well, you see, sir, we have so little practice. The nobility are shaved as nome; the gentry and plain people shave themselves. None but Americans need a

Do you know that there is no such thing as a baggage check used on any of the rail ways in England? You get no guarantee whatever for your baggage. It is your business to see it on the cab: to see it to the de pot; to see it aboard the train. Then it i your business to get it again at the end of your journey. Yet the English flatter themselves that they are the hear travellers and that they have the best conducted lines of travel in the world, The English women are the poorest dress ers in Europe; and yet English society is sigularly exacting. A lady goes to a com mon ballad concert, at St. James's Hali-hap nens to wear a light Paris bonnet and i required to take it off in a dressing room. paying the waiting woman sixpence to keep it, before she is allowed to take the seats sh has paid for. She goes in and finds the halfilled with scrubby, ill-dressed women, each having a bit of ribbon stuck to her hair and each considering herself in full dress. Of course no gentleman is admitted at Coven Garden or Drury Lane without a swallow tailed coat and a white cravat; nor then until he has paid sixpence to a hag who turns down his seat for him or opens the door of a box. Go where you will this petty tax is encountered. Why? Because the country is too full of people and living had to be got at for the overplus in some way. If a London cabby cheats you out of sixpence, he thinks he has done a good thing, but if he does you for half a crown, he feels proud of himself, of his vocation and of his country. A pretty bar maid swindled, me out of a halfpenny on a glass of sherry the other day, and I saw joy unspeakable beam out of he lovely, thieving eyes, as I turned away, and she felt sure of thieving having bagged her plunder. They do their robbery on a small scale. In London a penny is a big thing. I asked an oysterman to open me a dozen of his oysters. "A dozen sir?" says he. "Yes," I said, "e dozen." 'Do you know, sir," save he, "what they cost?" "No," said 1, "I don't; what do they cost?" Then, rather melodramatically, he said: "Two and eightpence." When I had eaten the oysters and paid him the money he rang it on the counter, and could hardly realize that the transaction was genuine.

Amusements in London are much more expensive than they are with us, and not very much better. A first class seat to hear Patti or Nilsson costa a guinea, five dollars in gold. You can get a first class seat at none of the first class theaters for less than ten shillings, two dollars and a half. Even at the Alhambra, the sensation house, where they are doing the Black Crook, the admis sion is five shillings, about a dollar and a half in American currency.

Why Prices Are High. [John Ruskin.] The weekly bills are double, because the greater part of the labor of the people of England is spent unproductively; that is to say, in producing iron plates, iron guns gunpowder, infernal machines, infernal fortresses floating about, infernal fortresses stand ing still, infernal means of mischievous lo comotion, infernal lawsuits, infernal parlia mentary elocution, infernal beer, and infernal gazettes, magazines, statues, and pictures. Calculate the labor spent in producing these infernal articles annually, and put against it the labor of producing food! The only wonder is, that the weekly bills are not tenfold instead of double. For this poor housewife, mind you, can not feed her children with any one, or any quantity, of these infernal articles. Children can only be fed with divine articles. Their mother can, indeed, get to London, cheap, but she has no business there; she can buy all the morning's news for a halfpenny, but she has no con cern with them; she can see Gustav Dore' pictures (and she had better see the devil) for a shilling; she can be carried through any quantity of hithy streets on a tramway for threepence; but it is as much as her life is worth to walk in them, or as her modesty is

Adventures of a Corpse.

N. Y. Tribune. The apparently lifeless body of a man was found in the street, about three years ago, and carried to a police station, whence it was transferred in the dead-wagon to the Morgue. No one having identified him or claimed it for interment, it was subsequently placed in a rough, pine coffin for burial in Potter's Field. While the charity undertaker was nailing down the lid of the coffin, the supposed corpse suddenly became animated, and, announcing that it was Christian Schmidt,, aged 52, it shambled away. Two years later the seeming corpse of a man was again found under similar circumstances, and, passing through the same routine of transportation, it was deposited, side by side, with the unknown dead, on a marble slab at the Morgue, to await identification. Small streams of water were permitted to trickle over its surface to prevent rapid decomposi-Scarcely had its involuntary shower bath begun, however, before it shuddered convulsively, slid from the cold marble slab and, robing itself in its accustomed tattered garb, it feebly preclaimed itself Christian Schmidt, aged 54, a German plasterer, and tottered away from the noisome charnel house. A liberal exchange of newspapers means a good, healthy business, and in addition a thorough belief in the virtue of advertising. A six penny publisher has no respect for the business system which brings him two-thirds of his money; and it will be found that unless he is closely watched he will cheat his patrons, whether they merely read his paper or patronize its advertising columns. have a very large number of exchanges. we propose to keep them—as much from a settled business policy as from their unmistabable value to the Democrat and Chronicle as a central newspaper. Of course, if a publisher hasn't money enough to pay the postage necessary to this style of advertising, he is hardly to be blamed for a confession of his poverty; but in that case he doesn't know how to go to work to make a good newspaper, and his proper procedure is a speedy entrance into some respectable poor-house. As a business man, he is a failure; and so he ought to be regarded by all business men who contemplate the use of his columns.

Square Talk from the Truly Good. Cincinnati Gazette

Mr Carpenter took good care, last fall, in his campaign speeches, not to sper g of protecting poor men by adding fifty per cent, to the salary of Congressmen. His talk then was honesty and economy, and that was the talk on both sides and everywhere. Therefore, Congressmen have violated the confidence reposed in them, and every member who voted for the grab, and who will not vote to wipe out the disgrace, will stand before the people a dishonored man. The question is not whether a man can live on $5,000, or any other sum, or whether a member of Congress can make more outside than inside, but whether the Congress of the United States is to be composed of honorable men or of individuals who except the trust to advance their own personal interest, without regard to pledge, direct or implied.

A Warning to Attorneys. Courier-Journal.

An Alabama lewyer, defending a midrderer, spoke for nineteen consecutive hours, and the jury brought in a verdict of guilty, in seven minutes. They probably did it to revenge themselves for the torture they had endured. Loquacious attorneys should limit their tongues before they reach the limit of human patience.

A New One of Sydney Smith.

He was good-natured and tolerant; but when Lord Belbourne, whom he had gone to see upon some business, interlarded his conversation with much cursing and swearing, he quietly remarked. "Let us assume that everybody and everything are damned and proceed for the subject.'

Very Low Indeed. Grandview Monitor.

Some youg men of this town interspersed with a lot of little boys, amused themselves last Sunday by playing marbles on the brick-yard. This is a very idle amusement even on week day, and a very low, degrading business on the sabbath, especially for young men that know better.

Economy.

Rochester Democrat & Chronicle The President never swears, because, as he says, he is a man or few words and doesn't wish to waste any. It strikes us that that is an excellent explanation of a slight matter of econemy, though it isn't remarkable for orthodoxy.

Dead Without His Knowledge.

George Dilin, employed at Woodruff Place came to the city Saturday night, and was horrified to learn that his wife had died upon Wednesday, and was buried the day following. Mrs. D. was an invalid for some months previous to death, and resided with her mother, at 302 North Mississippi street, between whom and George, it appears, there was sufficient dislike to forbid him entrance tion. to the house, even while his wife was in the last stages of disease.

Notwithstanding their intense feeling on Saturday night, the sins of yesterday were of the same "numerosity" and about as flagrant as ever.

Into the Canal Went He. Yesterday afternoon, David Stewart, and a resterday atternoon, David Stewart, and a companion named George somebody drove proof that Christianity and railway business intention on that day to organize a stock up the alley alonside the Lynn sisters' den. on Missouri street, and after his triend had consistent and useful member of the Second jumped to the ground, the horse became Presbyterian, he has, however, been teaching frightened at a passing engine, made two or a railway Bible class in the Olivet Church three mad plunges and kicks and then went until yesterday, when he inaugurated one up over the track embankment and down at the Second's Sunday school, with a good in the water of the canal, stopping when membership. #### THE $50,000 CORRUPTION FUND.

Thomas D. Kingan Interviewed. A News reporter called on Mr. T. D. Kingan this morning and interviewed him in regard to the charge in yesterday's People that he "had $50,000 to expend in getting the ordinance regulating pork houses repealed, and intended making use of it," with the following effect

"Mr. Kingan, I presume you have read the charge in the People that you had a large sum of money to expend in getting the ordinance regulating pork houses repealed, and I have called for the purpose of ascertaining what foundation, if any, there is for the assertion.

"There is not a particle of truth in it. Such a thing never entered my mind. It is simply ridiculous, the idea of resorting to such desperate measures to carry our point."

"Do you recollect of having at any time a conversation that could be construed into an intention to use money in the pork house interest?

"No. sir, on the contrary such a thought never entered my mind. I have not spent a cent for any such purpose, and would not even if I thought it was necessary.' "What is your idea in regard to the object of the party making the charge?"

"The whole charge is false, and was uttered for effect, hoping thereby to aid in crushing out the pork house interest."

Another Effort at Jail Delivery. Joe Walters, the slippery scoundrel, James

Collum, who murdered Schuster, and Burke, as ringleaders, with the whole posse of jailbirds conniving and aiding; even including the female thief, Fannie Hill, vesterday attempted a stroke for liberty at the county ail by cutting through the brick wall on the south side, through which they would have passed into the attic of the Sheriff's residence and thence to the ground by the kitchen roof. Part of the rascals indulged in a 'loud" revivel meeting while the work was going on, drowning the hammering and tinkering, and it was by the merest accident that Lew McFadden, jailor, discovered the game before it had reached successful termination. "Mac" very pluckily ordered the prisoners to their cells, but they stubbornly refused. Walters especially being mutinous and he was forced to go into the corridor and wait for assistance, which came in the shape of Colonel Ruckle, Officer Keeffe, Will. and George Kettenbach, Officers Shaw and Al. Taffe, and in a brief period the prisoners were awed into submission and silence; all except Walters, who vituperatively cursed Officer Keeffe, and finally springing at him, was knocked senseless by a blow from his mace. The search revealed several notched knives, a fine saw, heavy fragments of iron bars, skeleton keys and a wooden pattern for others yet to be made; showing a well ar. ranged plan for escape.

There are now twenty-seven prisoners in About to-morrow week dreams of sudden the jail, the majority hard stuff to manage wealth will commence to vanish. Alexander McCaw, one of Root's foundry men, who has laid off for a trip to New thrust his hand through a pane of glass, cut ting an artery and bleeding profusely. Officer Buser tound him raising "Jupiter" at the Illinois House, and was met with the vilest abuse, which led to an arrest and a Officer Weigand came to th rescue, and between the two McCaw was nipped and taken to the station house, after having his hand dressed at the Institute.

After the nippers were on him, McCaw continued his abuse and finally incited Buser A man named Blain, in front of the Capi to strike him with his clenched fist, a pro tal House about five o'clock yesterday morn cedure somewhat censurable, but yet under the circumstances just what he deserved From the Illinois House to the Institute he could have been tracked by the stream of blood which fell upon the pavement from his hand, and it exhibited the insatiable cu riosity of people by seeing them strike the bloody trail and follow it up one way or the other until they learned particulars.

The Slaughter House Question.

To the Editor of The Evening News: At present when a terrific epidemic is approaching, the slaughter house question becomes a question of more than ordinary importance. The hog man's business naturally livides itself into two branches; the first to make money, the second to make stink. A slaughter house when located in a city is invariably a nuisance; this is the conclusion to which the city must arrive at last. The nealth and lives of the citizens are the para-mount considerations involved in this slaughter house question. If you think the city is in a very salubrious condition, go to the old cemetery and look at the new graves there, it looks as though it had been rooted over by a drove of hogs. We cannot tell how many deaths have been caused by the multitudin-ous stinks that rise so gracefully from the various nuisances and commingle with the atmosphere to be wafted by the gentle breezes to every quarter of the city, to be inhaled by rich and poor, by saint and sinner. In the contest that is now going on, one fact shines out as clear as the shining sun in heaven. The maintenance of nuisances in a city is stupid, preposterous and a crime against the people. Now is the time to make war on nastiness, for the cholera is coming. There is one class that I expect will oppose the removal of the nuisances and throw their influence in favor of the hog men,—I mean the undertakers. Contemplate the expression of satisfaction that you see diffused over their happy faces, it indicates that business is prosperous with them. I find it impossi ble to coincide in opinion with the distinguished city dad who expressed the opinion last Monday night that the action of the fourth warders was ridiculous. I say that the conduct of the fourth warders was neither ridiculous nor ri-Tomulous, nor ri-Jimu lous. The right of petition by the people is an old and well known right. Whoever does not know this is ignorant of one of the fundamental principles of republican govern-ment. The right of petition is acknowledged by State Legislatures, by Congress and by Parliament. Who are those city dads who in the plenitude of their ignorance presume to set themselves above the highest legisla tive bodies in the world.
